(l) Transferability

The Options are transferable subject to any restriction or escrow arrangements imposed by ASX or under applicable Australian securities laws.

5.2 Ordinary Fully Paid Shares

The following is a summary of the more significant rights and liabilities attaching to Shares that will be issued if the Placement Options or Broker Options are exercised.

This summary is not exhaustive and does not constitute a definitive statement of the rights and liabilities of Shareholders. To obtain such a statement, persons should seek independent legal advice.

Full details of the rights and liabilities attaching to Shares are set out in the Constitution, a copy of which is available for inspection at the Company's registered office during normal business hours.

(a) General meetings

Shareholders are entitled to be present in person, or by proxy, attorney or representative to attend and vote at general meetings of the Company. Shareholders may requisition meetings in accordance with section 249D of the Corporations Act and the Constitution of the Company.

(b) Voting rights

Subject to any rights or restrictions for the time being attached to any class or classes of shares, at general meetings of shareholders or classes of shareholders:

- (i) each Shareholder entitled to vote may vote in person or by proxy, attorney or representative;
- (ii) on a show of hands, every person present who is a Shareholder or a proxy, attorney or representative of a Shareholder has one vote; and
- (iii) on a poll, every person present who is a Shareholder or a proxy, attorney or representative of a Shareholder shall, in respect of each fully paid Share held by him, or in respect of which he is appointed a proxy, attorney or representative, have one vote for each Share held, but in respect of partly paid shares shall have such number of votes as bears the same proportion to the total of such Shares registered in the Shareholder's name as the amount paid (not credited) bears to the total amounts paid and payable (excluding amounts credited).

(c) Dividend rights

Subject to any rights or restrictions attached to any shares or class of shares, the Directors may from time to time declare a dividend to be paid to the Shareholders entitled to the dividend which shall be payable on all Shares according to the proportion that the amount paid (not credited) is of the total amounts paid and payable (excluding amounts credited) in respect of such Shares.

No dividend shall carry interest as against the Company. The Directors may set aside out of the profits any reserves or provisions it decides.

(d) Winding-up

If the Company is wound up, the liquidator may, with the authority of a special resolution, divide among the Shareholders in kind the whole or any part of the property of the Company, and may determine how the division is to be carried out as between the Shareholders or different classes of Shareholders.

(e) Shareholder liability

As the Shares issued will be fully paid shares, they will not be subject to any calls for money by the Directors and will therefore not become liable for forfeiture.

(f) Transfer of shares

Generally, shares in the Company are freely transferable, subject to formal requirements, the registration of the transfer not resulting in a contravention of or failure to observe the provisions of a law of Australia and the transfer not being in breach of the Corporations Act and the ASX Listing Rules.

(g) Future increase in capital

The issue of any new Shares is under the control of the Directors of the Company. Subject to restrictions on the issue or grant of Securities contained in the ASX Listing Rules, the Constitution and the Corporations Act (and without affecting any special right previously conferred on the holder of an existing share or class of shares), the Directors may issue Shares as they shall, in their absolute discretion, determine.

(h) Variation of rights

Under section 246B of the Corporations Act, the Company may, with the sanction of a special resolution passed at a meeting of Shareholders vary or abrogate the rights attaching to shares. If at any time the share capital is divided into different classes of shares, the rights attached to any class (unless otherwise provided by the terms of issue of the shares of that class), whether or not the Company is being wound up, may be varied or abrogated with the consent in writing of the holders of three quarters of the issued shares of that class, or if authorised by a special resolution passed at a separate meeting of the holders of the shares of that class.

(i) Alteration of constitution

In accordance with the Corporations Act, the Constitution can only be amended by a special resolution passed by at least three quarters of Shareholders present and voting at the general meeting. In addition, at least 28 days written notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as a special resolution must be given.

6. RISK FACTORS

6.1 Introduction

The securities offered under this Prospectus are considered highly speculative. An investment in the Company is not risk free and the Directors strongly recommend potential investors consider the risk factors described below, together with information contained elsewhere in this Prospectus and to consult their professional advisers before deciding whether to apply for securities pursuant to this Prospectus.

There are specific risks which relate directly to the Company's business. In addition, there are other general risks, many of which are largely beyond the control of the Company and the Directors. The risks identified in this Section, or other risk factors, may have a material impact on the financial performance of the Company and the market price of the securities.

The following is not intended to be an exhaustive list of the risk factors to which the Company is exposed.

6.2 Specific Risks

(a) Future capital requirements

The Company's current business will require ongoing expenditures. The funds raised from the Placement and issue of the Broker Options will not be sufficient to successfully achieve all the objectives of the Company's overall business strategy and it will be required to raise additional capital.

If the Company is unable to source additional capital after exhaustion of the net proceeds of the Placement and existing working capital, there can be no assurance that the Company will have sufficient capital to continue.

Any additional equity financing would most likely be dilutive to the Company's existing Shareholders and any debt financing if available, may involve restrictive covenants, which may limit the Company's business strategy. The Company's failure to raise capital if and when needed could delay or suspend the Company's business strategy and could have a material adverse effect on the Company's activities.

(b) Potential for dilution

Upon completion of the Offers and assuming all Options proposed to be issued under the Offers are issued and exercised (but assuming no other existing options are exercised, existing performance rights converted into Shares or any other securities are issued) the number of Shares on issue in the Company will increase from 308,446,580 currently on issue to 323,351,378.

This means that each Share will represent a lower proportion of the ownership of the Company.

It is not possible to predict what the value of the Company or a Share will be following the completion of the Offers being implemented and the Directors do not make any representation as to such matters.

The last trading price of Shares on ASX prior to the date of this Prospectus (being, 15 December 2023) of $0.440 is not a reliable indicator as to the potential trading price of Shares after implementation of the Offers.

(c) Namibia sovereign risk

The Company's Namibian activities are subject to the risks associated with operating in a foreign country. These risks may include economic, social or political instability or change, hyperinflation, currency non-convertibility or instability and changes of law affecting foreign ownership, government participation, taxation, working conditions, rates of exchange, exchange control, exploration licensing, export duties, repatriation of income or return of capital, environmental protection, mine safety, labour relations as well as government control over mineral properties or government regulations that require the employment of local staff or contractors or require other benefits to be provided to local residents.

Any future material adverse changes in government policies or legislation in Namibia that affect foreign ownership, mineral exploration, development or mining activities, may affect the viability and profitability of the Company.

To date, the Company has experienced good working relations with the Republic of Namibia's Ministry of Mines and Energy personnel and the Minister of Mines.

(d) Tenement Title – Namibia

Interest in minerals licences (herein referred to as "tenements") in Namibia is governed by Namibian legislation and is evidenced by the grant of licences. Each licence is for a specific term and may carry with it, annual expenditure and reporting commitments, as well as other statutory and ancillary terms and conditions requiring compliance.

(e) Title, Tenure and Access – General

Generally, licences which the Company owns or may acquire either by application, sale and purchase, joint venture or farm-in are regulated by the applicable mining legislation. There is no guarantee that applications will be granted as applied for (although the Company has no reason to believe that licence applications will not be granted in due course). Various conditions may also be imposed as a condition of grant. In addition, a relevant minister or government agency may need to consent to any transfer of any licence to the Company.

Renewal of licences is also made by way of application to the relevant department. There is no guarantee that a renewal will be automatically granted other than in accordance with the applicable mining legislation. In addition, the relevant minister or government agency may impose conditions on any renewal, including relinquishment of ground.

(f) Namibian Licence Renewal

The mineral licencing process in Namibia extends beyond the expiry date of a licence. Once the licence expiry date has been reached and assuming the holder has applied to extend the term of the licence, it enters a pending renewal period which can take many months or even years. If the Ministry of Environment Forestry & Tourism (MEFT) ultimately decides that it intends to reject a license renewal, the cessation process of the licence begins when the MEFT issues a formal notice of its intention to reject renewal of the licence. There are several appeal processes that are allowed after that notice, including to the MEFT, the Minister and ultimately the High Court of Namibia. After any of these appeal processes the licence may ultimately be renewed.

(g) Uranium mining risk in Australia

Australia

All mining in Australia is regulated by both the Commonwealth and State Governments. The areas of uranium mining that are regulated include exploration, development, production, exports, taxes and royalties, labour standards, occupational health, waste disposal, protection and rehabilitation of the environment, mine reclamation, mine safety, toxic and radioactive substances, storage and transport and native title. In particular, the approval processes for uranium mining are more onerous than for the mining of other minerals. Compliance with such regulations may increase the costs of exploring, drilling, developing, constructing, operating and closing uranium mines and other production facilities.

The mining and export of uranium is permitted under strict national and international agreements designed to prevent nuclear proliferation. The export of uranium is tightly controlled by the Federal Government through its licensing process and Australian uranium can only be exported to those countries that sign bilateral agreements with Australia covering the use of Australian Obligated Nuclear Material (AONM) and who undertake to use it only for peaceful purposes.

Western Australia

From June 2002 to November 2008, uranium mining was prohibited in Western Australia. Accordingly, all mining leases granted since 22 June 2002 are subject to a condition which prohibits the mining of uranium. In 2008, the Liberal state government lifted the ban on uranium mining in Western Australia but this ban was re-imposed in 2017 and applies to all mining leases granted from the date of the ban.

Future legislation and regulations could cause additional expense, capital expenditures, restrictions and delays in the development of the Company's assets of which cannot be predicted.

(h) Title risk – Western Australia and Northern Territory

Under the terms of the grant of the tenements and certain other contractual agreements to which the Company is or may in the future become party, the Company is or may become subject to payment and other obligations. In particular, tenement holders are required to meet prescribed expenditure conditions. Failure to meet these expenditure commitments will render the tenement liable to be forfeited unless a total or partial exemption is granted in accordance with the Mining Act 1978 (WA) or the equivalent legislation in the Northern Territory.

Further, there is no guarantee that current or future applications, extensions or renewals of the Company's exploration or mining tenements will be granted.

Even if the Company is entitled to seek an exemption from the requirement to meet expenditure requirements, it may nevertheless be the subject of an attempt by a third party to claim a failure to satisfy expenditure conditions which may need to be resolved through litigation.

(i) Native title and access risks - Australia

Exploration and mining activities can be affected by land claim compensation and environmental considerations. It is possible that Aboriginal sites of significance may be found within the Company's tenements that may preclude exploration and mining activities and the Company may also experience delays with respect to obtaining permission from traditional owners to explore and extract resources.

The Company must comply with Aboriginal heritage legislation requirements and, in some instances if a native title claim was to be made over the project area, the Company might need to negotiate access agreements which require heritage survey work to be undertaken ahead of the commencement of exploration or mining operations.

The Directors closely monitor the potential effect of native title claims involving tenements in which the Company has or may have an interest.

(j) Exploration Targets

The Company may describe the exploration potential of some of its prospects in the form of exploration targets. Those exploration targets are conceptual in nature as there has been insufficient exploration to define a mineral resource in accordance to JORC 2004, and it is uncertain if future exploration would have resulted in the determination of a mineral resource within them. Exploration targets are expert expressions of judgment based on geological models produced from knowledge, experience and industry practice. These models and targets can have an influence on the methods and styles of exploration activity. However, it is recommended that no investment decision be made on the basis of exploration targets.

(k) JORC 2004 Resources

The Company currently has and may acquire JORC 2004 mineral resources from time to time. If the mineral resource estimate for any such JORC 2004 resources were prepared and first disclosed under the 2004 Edition of the Australian Code for the Reporting of Exploration Results, Minerals Resources and Ore Reserves (JORC Code 2004) and they have not since been updated to comply with the 2012 Edition of the Australian Code for the Reporting of Exploration Results, Minerals Resources and Ore Reserves (JORC Code 2012), ASX Listing Rules will require that they are updated to JORC 2012 if that information materially changes since it was last reported. It is possible that the conversion from JORC 2004 to JORC 2012, may result in a material change to the JORC 2004 reported mineral resource estimate.

(l) Resource and Reserve Estimates

Resource and reserve estimates are expressions of judgement based on knowledge, experience and industry practice. Estimates that are valid when made may change significantly when new information becomes available through drilling, sampling, metallurgical recovery testwork and similar examinations.

In addition, resource and reserve estimates are necessarily imprecise and depend to some extent on interpretations, which may prove to be inaccurate. Should the Company encounter mineralisation or formations different from those predicted, resource estimates may have to be adjusted and mining plans may have to be altered in a way which could adversely affect the Company's operations.

(m) Joint venture parties, contractors and agents

The Directors are unable to predict the risk of financial failure or default by a participant in any joint venture to which the Company is, or may become a party; or insolvency or other managerial failure by any of the contractors used by the Company in any of its activities; or insolvency or other managerial failure by any of the other service providers used by the Company for any activity.

(n) Exploration, development, mining and processing risks

Mineral exploration, project development and mining by their nature contain elements of significant risk. Ultimate and continuous success of these activities is dependent on many factors such as:

- (i) the discovery and/or acquisition of economically recoverable ore resources;
- (ii) successful conclusions to bankable feasibility studies; and
- (iii) access to adequate capital for project development.

Whether or not income will result from development of tenements depends on the successful establishment of mining operations. Factors including costs, actual mineralisation, consistency and reliability of ore grades and commodity prices affect successful project development and mining operations.

(o) Metallurgy

Metal and/or mineral recoveries are dependent upon the metallurgical process, and by its nature contain elements of significant risk such as:

- (i) The ability to develop an economic process route to produce a metal and/or concentrate;
- (ii) changes in mineralogy in the ore deposit can result in inconsistent metal recovery, affecting the economic viability of the project; and
- (iii) the Company has not yet commercially proven the technical and economic viability of the scale up of the U-pgrade™ process to a commercial operation.

(p) Operational and technical risks

The current and future operations of the Company, including exploration, appraisal, production and licencing activities may be affected by a range of factors, including:

- (i) geological, geotechnical and hydrogeological conditions;
- (ii) limitations on activities due to seasonal weather patterns;
- (iii) alterations to joint venture programs and budgets;
- (iv) the supply and cost of skilled labour; and/or
- (v) prevention or restriction of access by reason of political unrest, outbreak of hostilities and inability to obtain consents or approvals.

(q) Technology Risk

The Company developed proprietary process to upgrade the uranium ore at the Marenica Uranium Project ("U-pgrade™") with the potential to be applied to other similar uranium deposits. The process has, however, only been "bench scale" tested on samples of ore from the Company's own Marenica Uranium Project, Paladin Energy Limited's Langer Heinrich Project, Orano's Trekkopje Project, Toro Energy Limited's Wiluna Project and Deep Yellow Limited's Tumas and Aussinanis Projects. There is a risk that the U-pgrade™ process may not be able to be replicated on a commercial scale.

(r) General Environmental Risks

Mining is an industry which has become subject to increasing environmental responsibility and liability. The potential liability is an ever-present risk.

Mining and exploration operations have inherent risks and liabilities associated with safety and damage to the environment and the disposal of waste products occurring as a result of mineral exploration and production. The occurrence of any such safety or environmental incident could delay exploration or increase costs. Events, such as unpredictable rainfall or bushfires may impact on the Company's ongoing compliance with environmental legislation, regulations and licences. Significant liabilities could be imposed on the Company for damages, clean up costs or penalties in the event of certain discharges into the environment, environmental damage caused by previous operations or non-compliance with environmental laws or regulations.

(s) Intellectual property

- (i) The Company has sought to protect intellectual property in its proprietary process, including applying for patents. A patent is a monopoly granted by a government for a period of up to 20 years in return for disclosure to the world. A patent provides exclusive legal rights in respect of an invention (as defined by the claims of a patent) in the country of grant. After a patent expires or lapses, or to the extent of any revocation, anyone may then use the invention.

- (ii) In order to secure patent protection, a patent application is filed with the Patent Office in each country of interest, the application is examined under the patent laws of that country, and a patent will be issued if the application meets the patentability criteria of that country. The grant of a patent in one country does not guarantee the grant of a patent for the same invention in another country. Moreover, the claims of a patent application may be amended during examination before a national Patent Office to meet the patentability criteria of that country. Accordingly, the scope of any patent protection may vary between countries, and from the initially filed patent application.
- (iii) The grant of a patent does not guarantee validity and a patent may be challenged by third parties at a Patent Office by opposition and/or re-examination in some countries, or post-grant through the courts by revocation proceedings.
- (iv) The grant of a valid patent does not mean that the invention may be exploited in a given country without infringing third party IP rights in that country.

(t) Global Credit and Investment Markets

Global credit, commodity and investment markets often exhibit a high degree of uncertainty and volatility. The factors which contribute to these situations are outside the control of the Company and may occur from time to time resulting in uncertainty in world stock markets (including ASX). This may impact the price at which the Company's securities trade regardless of operating performance and affect the Company's ability to raise additional equity and/or debt to achieve its objectives.

(u) Competition from alternative energy and public perception

Nuclear energy is in direct competition with other sources of energy which include oil, gas, coal, hydroelectricity and other renewable energies such as wind, solar, hydrogen and others as yet determined. The competitiveness of these energy sources may change as a result of technological, political or other developments resulting in a decrease in the competitiveness of nuclear energy with a consequent impact on the demand for uranium. Furthermore, the growth of the nuclear power industry (and resulting increase in the demand for uranium) beyond its current level will depend upon continued and increased acceptance of nuclear technology as a means of generating electricity.

The nuclear industry may be subject to negative public opinion due to political, technological and environmental factors. Negative public opinion may continue to have an adverse impact on the demand for uranium and increase the regulation of uranium mining thereby making it more difficult for the Company to extract value from its Tenements.

One of the arguments for nuclear energy is its substantially reduced level of carbon emissions per unit of power generated compared to coal and gas. Alternative energy systems such as wind or solar also have very low levels of carbon emissions however, to date, despite being inefficient governments all over the world are making substantial investments into trying to make wind and solar suitable for large scale base-load power. Nevertheless, technological changes may occur that make alternative energy systems more efficient, reliable and competitive, therefore making energy produced from uranium relatively less attractive and/or profitable.

(v) Commodity Price Volatility and Foreign Exchange Risk

In the event that the Company achieves exploration success and/or success with its strategies to commercialise U-pgrade™ leading to an interest in uranium production in Namibia or elsewhere, the Company will derive revenue through the sale of uranium.

Commodity prices fluctuate and are affected by numerous factors beyond the control of the Company. These factors include world demand for uranium, forward selling by producers, and production cost levels in major metal-producing regions.

Moreover, commodity prices are also affected by macroeconomic factors such as expectations regarding inflation, interest rates and global and regional demand for, and supply of, the commodity as well as general global economic conditions. These factors may have an adverse effect on the Company's exploration, development and production activities, as well as on its ability to fund those activities.

Furthermore, international prices of various commodities are denominated in United States Dollars, whereas the income and expenditure of the Company are and will be taken into account in Australian currency, exposing the Company to the fluctuations and volatility of the rate of exchange between the United States Dollar and the Australian Dollar as determined in international markets.

As the Company undertakes activities in Namibia, capital, ongoing expenditure and any income related thereto may be denominated in United States Dollars, Namibian Dollars or South African Rand.

Furthermore, no hedging strategy has yet been developed or implemented by the Company. This may result in the Company being exposed to the effects of the change in currency (exchange rate) risk.

(w) Insurance

The Company has a policy of obtaining insurance to reduce losses where appropriate, taking into consideration the availability of cover and premium costs and where required under its contractual commitments. There can be no assurance, however, that the Company will be able to obtain or maintain such insurance coverage at reasonable rates (or at all), or that any coverage it has or obtains will be adequate and available to cover any claims. However, as at the date of this Prospectus, the Directors believe that all appropriate insurance policies have been obtained by the Company.

(x) Taxation and government regulations

Changes in taxation and government legislation in a range of areas (for example, Corporations Act, accounting standards, and taxation law, or similar legislation in overseas jurisdictions) can have a significant influence on the outlook for all companies and the returns to investors.

The recoupment of taxation losses accrued by the Company from any future revenues is subject to the satisfaction of tests outlined in taxation legislation or regulations in the jurisdictions in which the Company operates. There is no guarantee that the Company will satisfy all of these requirements at the time it seeks to recoup its tax losses which may impact on the financial performance and cashflows of the Company.

Recent changes to taxation rules in a number of prominent African countries have materially impacted mining businesses. Whilst no such changes have been proposed in Namibia, if similar changes were adopted in the future they could materially affect the Company's asset values and potential future returns from Namibia.

(y) Reliance on key personnel

The Company is reliant on its key management personnel. The loss of one or more of these individuals could adversely affect the Company.

The Company manages this risk by recruiting qualified and experienced personnel and by ensuring key personnel are appropriately remunerated in line with industry standards.

6.3 General Risks

(a) Economic

General economic conditions, movements in interest and inflation rates and currency exchange rates may have an adverse effect on the Company's exploration, development and production activities, as well as on its ability to fund those activities.

(b) Pandemic risk

The outbreak of coronavirus pandemic (COVID-19) had a material effect on global economic markets. The global economic outlook may face uncertainty due to any future pandemic, which may have a significant impact on capital markets and share prices. The Company's Share price may be adversely affected by the economic uncertainty caused by any future pandemic.

Further, any governmental or industry measures taken in response to any future pandemic may adversely impact the Company's operations and are likely to be beyond the control of the Company. Government imposed restrictions on the Company's ability to freely move people and equipment to and from projects in response to any future pandemic may cause delays or cost increases. The effects of any future pandemic on the Company's Share price may also impede the Company's ability to raise capital or require the Company to issue capital at a discount, which may in turn cause dilution to Shareholders.

(c) Competition risk

The industry in which the Company will be involved is subject to domestic and global competition. Although the Company will undertake all reasonable due diligence in its business decisions and operations, the Company will have no influence or control over the activities or actions of its competitors, which activities or actions may, positively or negatively, affect the operating and financial performance of the Company's projects and business.

(d) Market conditions

Share market conditions may affect the value of the Company's quoted securities regardless of the Company's absolute or relative operating performance. Share market conditions are affected by many factors such as:

- (i) general economic outlook;
- (ii) introduction of tax reform or other new legislation;
- (iii) interest rates and inflation rates;
- (iv) changes in investor sentiment toward particular market sectors;
- (v) the demand for, and supply of, capital; and/or
- (vi) terrorism or other hostilities.

The market price of securities can fall as well as rise and may be subject to varied and unpredictable influences on the market for equities in general and resource exploration stocks in particular. Neither the Company nor the Directors warrant the future performance of the Company or any return on an investment in the Company.

(e) Dividends

Any future determination as to the payment of dividends by the Company will be at the discretion of the Directors and will depend on the financial condition of the Company, future capital requirements and general business and other factors considered relevant by the Directors. No assurance in relation to the payment of dividends or franking credits attaching to dividends can be given by the Company.

(f) Taxation - acquisition and disposal of securities

The acquisition and disposal of securities will have tax consequences, which will differ depending on the individual financial affairs of each investor. All potential investors in the Company are urged to obtain independent financial advice about the consequences of acquiring securities from a taxation viewpoint and generally.

To the maximum extent permitted by law, the Company, its officers and each of their respective advisors accept no liability and responsibility with respect to the taxation consequences of subscribing for securities under this Prospectus.

6.4 Speculative investment

The above list of risk factors ought not be taken as exhaustive of the risks faced by the Company or by investors in the Company. The above factors, and others not specifically referred to above, may in the future materially affect the financial performance of the Company and the value of the Offers under this Prospectus.

Therefore, the Options being issued pursuant to this Prospectus (or Shares to be issued upon exercise of the Options) carry no guarantee with respect to the payment of dividends, returns of capital or their respective market value.

Potential investors should consider that the investment in the Company is speculative and should consult their professional advisers before deciding whether to apply for securities pursuant to this Prospectus.
